ELEGANCE.

MESSRS BIRNSTINGL AND CO., Jewellers and Watchmakers, beg to inform the ladies and gentlemen of Sydney, and its vicinity, that in addition to their well selected stock of Jewellery, generally acknowledged the most splendid and fashionable in the Colony, they have received, en Mandoline, direct from Paris, Munich, and Vienna, a large assortment of the most elegant flower vases, chimney and drawing-room ornaments, ever imported into this colony, with a variety of richly gilt frame looking glasses, quite of a new style, well worthy the attention of gentlemen furnishing.

Gentlemen wishing to have something novel are called on to inspect their invisible clock, which for ornament as well as for ingenuity and correctness is not to be equalled. Parties who have never been to England, are particularly invited to come and view this extraordinary piece of mechanism, the only one to be seen in the colony.

Watches, Clocks, and Musical Boxes repaired, for the correctness of which Messrs. B. and Co. will guarantee.

£10,000 STOCK
TO BE CLEARED OUT IN TWO MONTHS.

GREAT BARGAINS AT THE BEE HIVE.

CHRISTOPHER NEWTON has received instructions from England by the last "Packet ship Georgetown," to sell off the whole of his present Stock, in order to close consignments of goods sent to him, at the end of which time all the remaining stock will be Sold by PUBLIC AUCTION ON THE PREMISES.

In consequence of the above instructions, Christopher Newton has determined to sell the whole of his Stock at such prices as shall render it impossible for any one to compete with him, either in cheapness of selection or in lowness of price.

In order that his instructions may be carried out in the most advantageous manner, C. N. has engaged some Auction additional assistants, and will close one Shop on Friday, the 28th instant, to enable him to re-mark the present stock.

The sale at reduced prices to commence on Monday morning, 1st July. The Shops will be opened at 7 A.M., and closed precisely at 8 o'clock P.M.

Country buyers and storekeepers are earnestly requested to call as early in the morning as possible, in order that they may avoid the inconvenience of a crowded Shop and Stores, and consequently be better attended to.

In consequence of the upward tendency of the Drapery Market, many parties may be induced to raise the prices of their goods. C. N. is determined not to do this; but on the contrary, to reduce still further his prices, and as he holds a large stock, great bargains may be met with, so that

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY,

And owing to the advantages now offered, Families may save money by purchasing at the "Bee Hive," and country buyers may replenish their Stores at lower prices here than elsewhere.

In offering the following list of Goods, C. N. refrains from giving the prices, feeling assured that in many instances they only mislead and confuse.

High water at full and change of the moon in Sydney Cove, at 8 h. 30 m.

Port Office, 1844.

NEWCASTLE, June 28.—The ship Urgent sailed for New Zealand on Tuesday last, with horses, cattle, and sheep. A barque was off the port yesterday afternoon, and gave her name Anon; she stood off again to the eastward, it was thought very hard. Nothing more can be said about her, as there is neither Marryatt's Code of Signals or books allowed here at present; had there been, every information might have been rendered, as the vessel seemed to stand in for the purpose of communicating with the shore. There was also a large barque off the southward, but appeared to be standing to the southward; she was spoken by a schooner bound to this port, but owing to its blowing so hard she could not venture to stand off.

The whaling barque Nimrod is hourly expected, as orders have been forwarded by the owners in London, and she is due for him to bring her up from Port Stephens.

A considerable number of the immigrants by the Britain, now moored off the Flour Company's Wharf, were engaged on Saturday. The greater number on board are, as we have already stated, of the agricultural class, and being those most required, will go off apidly.

"Sworn to no master, of no sect am I."

THE NEWLY ARRIVED IMMIGRANTS.

IT was stated by the COLONIAL SECRETARY, a few days since, that of the £1000 voted by the Legislative Council, to assist in conveying persons out of employment into the interior, only £102 had been spent, the remainder we presume, is therefore applicable to the performance of this service. It would be extremely advisable to offer every person who arrived by the late ships, and has not obtained employment by the end of the week, the means of proceeding to the outstations or to the interior. We would particularly draw the attention of the Executive to Portland Bay, a district which is gradually becoming more important, which has contributed a large sum to the Crown Land Revenue, and has never had any immigrants sent there direct. At present a schooner or brig which would convey about a hundred souls, say forty adults, with a proportionate number of women and children, could be chartered for a month at a very low rate; and provisions are now so cheap, that the expense of victualling her would be but trifling. The residents in that district have a claim for a more direct participation in the proceeds of the land fund than they have hitherto had, and we do not think there could be a better time than the present for sending them down a small supply of labour, we say a small supply, for we do not suppose that a large number of persons will readily find employment. Whether this course is adopted or not, we trust the Government will afford all the facilities they can to those who have recently arrived on our shores, and by sending them into the interior, get them as soon as possible out of the reach of the mischievous influence of the Mutual Protection Association and its satellites.

COST OF EXPORTING TALLOW.

As there are very opposite erroneous ideas prevalent as to the expenses incurred in the shipment of tallow for London, and the sale of it there, we draw the particular attention of those interested, to the following statement of expenses actually charged to Messrs. J. B. and A. B. WILSHIRE, who sent home between thirteen and fourteen tons:—

	£	s.	d.
Freight on 273 cwt. 3 qr. 26 lb., at £4 per ton ..	54	16	0
Five per cent. primage....	2	14	9
Dock charges	9	9	0
Insurance on £350, at 40s.	11	0	0
Policy	1	5	0
Duty of 1s. per cwt.	13	14	0
Additional duty of 5 per cent. on amount	0	13	9
Entry for ditto.....	0	5	0
Entry at Custom House ..	0	5	0
Proportion of sale charges	3	0	0
Brokerage, 1 per cent....	5	9	5½
Discount, 2½ per cent. on amount of sale	13	13	10
Commission on cash remitted	10	15	6
Total expenses.....	£127	1	0½

This will make the actual expenses about £9 6s. per ton, so that in calculating the value of our exports, we may in round numbers deduct £10 per ton for expenses, or taking the average price of tallow at £40, allow twenty-five per cent.

SERVICES OF THE 80TH REGIMENT.

The 80th regiment was raised in September, 1793, at the commencement of the French revolution, by a Royal Warrant addressed to Lord Hood, Paget, (afterwards Marquis of Anglesea.) The depôt for its formation was fixed at Chillham, where it was recruited to the ordered establishment of one thousand file, chiefly consisting of volunteers from the Stafford militia, from which circumstance the regiment still bears the name of Staffordshire Volunteers.

will be a pause of many days, to allow the heroes to recover breath: during this interval, Messrs. Wallace and Ewart will give notice of thirty motions apiece; Colonel Sibthorp will move for information about Dr. Bowring's missions, and intimate a bill to regulate cabmen; Dr. Bowring will ask questions about the Bishop of Jerusalem and the King of the Cannibal Islands; Mr. Fernand will talk about "Devil's dust," and Mr. Disraeli about Consular and Diplomatic Agents; and Messrs. Hume and Williams will move for all kinds of partial and incongruous returns. In the mean time, the Ministry will be on their bench. Since the Irish Repeal Members seem inclined to stay away, Lord John Russell will have leisure to prepare his subject of his grand yearly motion as leader of the Opposition. He will draw a Claude Lorrains picture of the Halcyon state of that country under Whig rule, and contrast it with a Salvator Rosa sketch of its present condition; concluding by a vague motion which binds his party to no course of action. Lord Stanley and the Recorder of Dublin will club their forces to revel the attack, and will say little to the purpose. Mr. Hamilton will write an Edinburgh Review article, tracing the history of Ireland from the time of St. Patrick to the present day. Sir Robert Inglis will stand up to defend the Church from some side-blow of the last speaker. Mr. Shaman Crawford will speak about Irish peace and a federal union; and Mr. Peter Borthwick will flourish his white gloves. Lord Palmerston will quote classical Greek; and by his more mingling in the debate introduce a new topic, and draw down upon himself an avalanche of taunts touching his diplomatic meddling and mischief-making. Personality will lead to personality; Mr. Fernand will fasten upon Mr. Cobden, and Mr. Bright upon Mr. Fernand, and the universal bubbles of recriminations will ensue, (with a running accompaniment of braying and cock-crowing, in which Orangemen will be the absent Demosthenes, Law Members, and Diplomatists of the Urquhart school, Repealers and Palmerstonians, will be such passionate allusions to the neighbour, without taking too curiously what he is, or why they strike him; till all trace of the original question is effaced from the memories of the disputants. Sir R. Peel will then, like Neptune in the storm of the Æneid, rise amid the hurlyburly, tell a plausible story, catch at some irrelevant remarks of a speaker on the other side, make a magnanimous declaration, and move the previous question. The combatants will then allow the turmoil to cease, from pure physical exhaustion. It will now be time for Mr. Villiers to intimate when the annual corn debate is to come on. Like music between the acts at the theatre, there will be, between the Irish and the corn-law bubbles, a slashing speech or two. Messrs. Duncombe and Wakefield, to show their spirit; some talk about the Church affairs of Scotland, by Messrs. Rutherford, Colquhoun, Fox Maule, Baillie Cochrane, and Sir James Graham; and a field parade on English Church rates, by Sir John Rashleigh. In the corn-law debate of seven nights, each speaker will conscientiously repeat the same speech he made last year, (neither more nor less,) and the result of the division will be the same, within half a dozen votes. Some business will be transacted, but not the business of the nation. While this talking and squabbling are going on, members will be as busy as pickpockets in a street brawl, smuggling jobbing private bills through the House. By this time the Premier will think the Session far enough wasted to admit of the Estimates, and the Budget being jobbed without much risk of lengthened, or at least searching discussion. Summer will be on, and members eager to be off. There will be formal debates on the motion to go into Committee; and much vague inapplicable talk about free trade on the one hand, and the importance of agriculture on the other. But the details of the Estimates will be hurried through Committee in thin Houses, most of the votes being taken after midnight. Pairs will become common; and the Appropriation clause being passed, haste will be made to prorogue Parliament before off members have taken French leave. And thus another session will pass, leaving no impression on the national memory, save Cassie's speak-proof, accessible, and eager, secundum Recorder Sutton." The House counted out to avoid a motion from Mr. Roebuck on Scinde, or an Law Reform, or some other Members will pretending to believe themselves all-wise, in order, that Sir C. Bullar may make a speech on Colonization, and move the compliment (with a request to withdraw his motion) from Sir Robert Peel and Lord John Russell. The repetition, year after year, of such dull statements' forces, were enough to make a man wish for another Cromwell, to step in and bid his Irenicides "take away that bauble."

THE LATE SIR HENRY HALFORD.

SIR HENRY HALFORD, Bart., whose decease on Saturday last is recorded in this day's paper, for long occupied a distinguished position in society, that some few particulars of his life will probably be accepted by our readers.

He was born on the 2nd of October, 1766, and received his early education at Rugby School, and at Christchurch, Oxford. He afterwards studied medicine at Edinburgh, and commenced practice, in conjunction with his father, Dr. Vaughan, a physician of high reputation, at Leicester. In 1792 or 1793 he settled in London, and rose with wonderfully rapid steps to the very first practice. After the death of Sir Baillie, in 1803, he was left absolutely without a rival. In 1820 he was elected President of the College of Physicians, and remained in that office until his death, having been re-elected every year for nearly a quarter of a century. Sir Henry Halford was Physician to five successive Sovereigns, three of whom he attended in their last illnesses, as well as many other families of the Royal Family, for he was held in the highest regard by every member of the family of George III. So great was his celebrity, that it occurred to him, in the course of his practice, to be consulted by several Sovereigns of other states, as well as by a great many Grandees of the very first distinction.

As a physician Sir Henry Halford was a favourite with all classes, and enjoyed in a remarkable degree the confidence of his patients. In consultation he was much regarded by his professional brethren on account of the quickness of his perception, the soundness of his judgment, and the readiness and abundance of his resources. In society he was prized, for his strong natural sagacity and good sense, for added the charm of a highly classical taste, and considerable literary attainments. In temper and disposition he was remarkably sociable and kind-hearted; and his enemies (if he was successful could not but have enemies) will say they that no man on earth was more pleasable and forgiving.

Sir Henry Halford was created a baronet by George III., and changed his name from Vaughan to Halford in compliance with the will of his maternal great uncle, the last Sir Charles Halford, of Wroton, in Leicestershire, from whom he inherited. He was knight Grand Cross of Hanover, a member of the Royal Society, and of several other literary societies, and Knight Grand Cross of Rudolphe, &c. He married a daughter of John, eleventh Lord St. John, of Bletsoe, by whom he has left one son and one daughter. His son, who succeeds to his title and estates, has been for some years member for South Leicestershire. His brothers (one of whom is a clergyman) are distinction by their talents, amongst them the late Sir Hon. Sir John Vaughan, the late Judge of Merioneth and Dean of Bangor. Only survives him—viz., the Right Hon. Sir Charles Richard Vaughan, formerly our highly popular Minister in the United States.

THE FRENCH IN TAHITI.—Another sample of that Saturnian reign over the foreign policy of the British empire which Sir Robert Peel announced to be his—of that utter indifference and neglect which Tories proclaim as parade, for which might be more fitly termed idiotcy, has occurred in the act by which the French Admiral has converted his protection of the Society Islands into direct sovereignty and possession. The first conduct of Admiral Dupetit Thouars, in assuming forcible protection of the islands, was an unwarrantable case of brute force, which the Admiral sought to excuse in his account of it by more shallow and hackneyed pretexts. It would have been much more manly in the French to have seized the islands at once; and it would have spared us some humiliation. The Protestant origin in those islands is thereby ascribed to the Catholic; but such a result, deplored for party-sake in Ireland, is considered a subject not worthy of the least attention in the Pulcide. We shall not dwell on it. The protestations and declarations of the French, that they left independence to Queen Pomare, induced British officers into a belief and a respect of that independence. And because Captain Nicolas acted upon that belief, the British officer is now held up to scorn by despatches published in the French ministerial papers. These despatches are, indeed, amazed at Nicolas's conduct from a Monsieur Gouze, a circumstance made of meeting any complaint from this side of the Channel. But Monsieur Gouze's despatches came, we will be bound to say, under cover to the French Minister of Marine. And this tissue of falsehood and calumny against Englishmen—at any rate, this pleture of French triumph and English humiliation—are returns to Lord Aberdeen for his concessions to the French ministry. Sir Robert Peel, the statesman, the English council, acted upon a similar belief with Captain Nicolas, and the French allege, assuming that Monsieur Gouze's despatches came, we will be bound to say, under cover to the French Minister of Marine. And this tissue of falsehood and calumny against Englishmen—at any rate, this pic

ORIGINAL CORRESPONDENCE.

SHEEP FARMING.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—As you are accused of having made a one-sided bungle in publishing my letter of the 8th May last, entitled "J. C. W." I trust you will allow me to equalize the matter, by replying to U. B. D. and his facetitious remarks, winding up with a different statement, which, if in existence, coupled with the sum of only £16 4s. 8d., as the profits on sheep farming, with a stock of sixty-five years, is in opposition the sooner U. B. D. abandons the speculation, the better for himself, or "Poverino will make him leave it," mutatis mutandis.

In my letter of the 4th May, I undertook to submit a correct estimate of sheep farming, based upon fourteen years' colonial experience.

It was not my intention to submit any plan of sub-management, to which alone I think the Insolvent Court applies.

It matters little in making an estimate of management, whether the sheep originally cost 40s. or 4s., the amount on hand at the end of the year after paying all expenses, is the profit or interest on the original outlay, the same as the dividend from a bank is not the profit on the original cost of the shares; and as well might the investment of funds in a Bank be asserted as insecure, taking the sub-management of the Bank of Australia as a data, as that sheep farming will not pay, when fallacious statements are made by prejudiced parties, to extricate themselves from debts which they have otherwise incurred.

With reference to the station being formed to my hands, I have yet to learn that it is necessary to erect huts and yards before your sheep can be taken into the bush. I assumed £16 per annum in my estimate for two fences (independent of amount for rations), and this item is more than sufficient for the object to be attained; and U. B. D. will find the sum of £315, inserted for carriage of wool, tallow, and supplies, calculated at six shillings per cwt., and not sixpence.

To show how easy it is to make assertions tended to mislead, that can be as easily refuted, I will begin with Mr. Boyd's statement, that he pays Government above £200 as duty on tobacco, made in the same speech in which he prides himself that his station is managed on the most economical plan. If this tobacco was issued as rations, it being negrohead, for colonial pays no duty, where is his boasted economy? "Ex" on the other hand, Mr. Boyd sells this tobacco to his men and derives a profit of fifty per cent. on it, it follows as one that the men pay the duty and not Mr. Boyd.

Again, in an estimate forwarded to you by Mr. Hamilton, inserted in his reply to Mr. Hamilton, I find him, Mr. Rusden, asserting the sum of £4 to be the expense of washing each flock of 700 sheep. If any man is fool enough to throw away, his money in such a way, which I candidly confess I cannot credit, it is very clear his sheep cannot pay, and the Insolvent Court must pull him up. Again, he adduces £80 as the expense of such man as the times are now, in which U. B. D. joins, him, namely £20 wages, and £60 for rations. For my own part I must say I can procure as many men as I want for £12 to £15 per annum for wages, and I have no doubt others could also, if they took the trouble.

Again, Mr. Wentworth and others assert that the proposed Government Regulations, charging one halfpenny for each acre of land per annum, is "an oppressive and ruinous tax." Upon what do they ground that assertion? Is it generally known that at this very moment Mr. Wentworth is receiving £137 10s. per annum as the rent of one thousand acres of land at Bathurst, used for sheep farming, and on which there is not one drop of water? And taking him at his own words, that the Government Regulations is "a ruinous and oppressive impost." May I ask what words are sufficiently strong to designate this act of his, knowing full well that he is aware a gentleman holding a departuring license in that district, to the Superintendent of Port Phillip.

2. Mr. WINDERER to move for a return to a bill to consolidate and amend the Jury Laws.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

For my own part I must say I can procure as many men as I want for £12 to £15 per annum for wages, and I have no doubt others could also, if they took the trouble.

And what constitutes the glory and excellence of the Mosaic form of government, was its being founded by the Almighty, through the instrumentality of Moses, and he invariably sought the direction of God, both publicly and privately, in all his deliberations and administrations; and if so, we may not wisely expect happier results from the deliberations of those who engage in the arduous task of legislating in dependence solely upon their own wisdom and sagacity, sovereign excellent they may be. If then it be necessary to glorify God and not by openly supplicating his blessing, though this blessing may be sought in private, why should we wonder at our failure, in not obtaining, though private blessings be bestowed. Whilst we hail with gratitude the existence of a body of patriotic men who have set their minds and upholds our best temporal interests, we lament to see so much energy and zeal and talent from some of our most distinguished colonists: for sure we are that human mind cannot by any effort, or by any series of efforts, so long as it acts independently of its maker, Him whom all wisdom emanates, remove those difficulties and distresses under which our colony labours, and under which it must labour and languish, until it be sufficiently known to us that the Most High rules amongst men. I was sorry to read the sentiment published some time since in the Herald, of a respectable correspondent, who in attempting to refute the arguments of "A Churchman" relative to the opening of the Legislative Council with prayer, considered that as the kingdom of the Divine Redeemer is not of this world, so neither should it be in it, and that Christ's kingdom has rendered the planet earth to the control of Satan. It is to the shame and everlasting disgrace of Christ's professed followers, that it is to the kingdom of God; and as every government in the world must either be agreeable to the Divine government, or opposed to it, so the government that acts independently of the latter, must of course act contrary to it, and therefore be opposed to God. I do not think it should be considered any disrespect to our august Legislature, if the public opinion should freely be expressed on matters of public decision of that body in the matter of Mr. Cowper's motion: for although we may esteem and respect our legislators on account of their high honorable station which they occupy, we may nevertheless, consistently with such esteem and respect, animadvert upon their decisions, especially when these are palpably pernicious to the ends of all right legislation, viz.—the good of man and the glory of God; and it is to be hoped, that we all, in right-minded sense, that whatsoever does not tend to promote these ends conjointly, is, to say the least of it, unworthy our attention and consideration in a rational mind. The national difficulties under which any people labour, and which require the patient deliberations of learned men to obviate, are most commonly produced by the people's departure from God; so to think to remove those difficulties, even by the highest efforts of human genius and wisdom, apart from a return to God, would be, what it has always in the events of time been proved to be, hard labour in vain and "spending strength for naught. Secondary causes of national or colonial depression may be perceived by the sagacious statesman, whilst the primary cause of such depression may be overlooked; and as this accounts for the fact, like a skilfull disease and physician, may afford extensive practice to the politician, though he be unable to remove it. Our recent commercial distress is said to have been the result of certain causes, which had they been foreseen might have been prevented; but how much more should the cause of this and every other distress in which we have been involved, was our having denied the God (?) in whom we live and move and have our being;" and that our sufferings were his visitations, a reprimand for our past conduct, and a warning for our future. "But for all this His anger is not turned away, but His hand is stretched out still." In closing these few remarks, I trust I have rather responsed, I would gently say to the correspondent to whom I have already alluded, whilst man should not neglect using prayer to be seen of men, they can be no objection to prayers being made to God in any sober public assembly, as well as in any private society.

I am, Gentlemen,
With much respect,
Your obedient servant,
AMICUS.

AERONAUTICS.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

GENTLEMEN,—In your remarks on Mr. Baundry's lecture you say, that "the idea of guiding a balloon in the bush is something new." Now, if by this you mean the idea of steering a balloon in the bush, I must inform you that it is by no means new to me, although I do not see that there is any thing very "bright" in my thoughts. It is now more than seven years since I not only entertained such an idea, but mentioned it to several of my friends and acquaintances, as the most practicable, the most satisfactory, and the least expensive method of discovering the interior of this country. I have since then, at times, dwelt upon it many times since, and I say so still; and, although the plan may be ridiculed by some, I am not at all, on that account, the less confident of its practicability and ultimate success. I am glad, therefore, to see that the same idea has at length occurred to another individual, and, rather known to the public than myself, and now hope to see it speedily carried into execution.

About four or five years ago, a balloon was started from London, in which some two or six gentlemen ascended, with the view of passing over to the continent, that balloon, you will probably recollect, after having made considerable part of England, crossed the English Channel, and alighted somewhere in Germany, without accident, even a bruise, after a flight of hundred miles. I do not say, therefore, that there is any thing to prevent the same, or even greater distance, being crossed in the same way in this country. Let a large balloon be started from Sydney, with a south-east wind, and, supposing it to carry, say, 20 men, there start as soon as possible after sun-rise, so as to have the whole day before them, and continue their flight as long and as far as they find it practicable and safe. Let them take with them materials sufficient for making a fresh start, after they have been obliged to alight, and provision for one month, to enable them to wait for the opportunity of a fair wind to bring them back, and, I am satisfied, it would be as easy to contrivingt a second, and a third attempt, until the whole surface of this vast island is made known. But you may perhaps say, where shall we find persons able and willing to undertake such a voyage of discovery, as we are not aware that any have been attempted in this country. My answer is, if there are none in this country, there are plenty in England, who would, I am satisfied, be willing to be such as
